

What Is CODIS-Access?

CODIS-Access is an electronic business-to-business e-commerce protocol developed by Consolidated Data that enables electronic transactions to be sent from computer to computer within a supply chain. The CODIS-Access technology creates standard for electronic documents such as purchase orders, “real time” stock inquiry, order confirmation receipts and much more. CODIS-Access simply acts as the common language between two business systems.

How does a dealer order from a supply chain partner using the CODIS-Access protocol?

If the dealer has a business management system with the integrated CODIS-Access interface, then this system is ready for configuration to allow purchase orders and live stock checks to be placed from supply chain partners. The same interface that has always been used within the dealership now will have expanded capabilities enabled for a “live” connection with supply chain partners. This eliminates the need for learning new software or third party interface troubleshooting.

How does CODIS-Access work in the outdoor power equipment industry?

The benefits of this technology and industry partner collaboration are numerous for dealers, business management vendors, distributors, and manufacturers in the outdoor power equipment industry. It reduces supply chain costs, streamlines information management, improves customer service, saves time and ultimately increases revenues for each participant in the supply chain.

How much does it cost the dealer?

The cost of the interface varies by business management software vendor. Most dealers can fully pay for the interface with 3-6 months by earning electronic ordering discounts from supply chain partners.
